scription of him was at once forwarded by cable to the authorities there.

Word received last night states that when searched the arrested man had only $3 on his person.

Ranged before Chief McDuffie this morning, three of the laborers told their story in detail. They have the appearance of hard working young fellows, and seem to feel keenly the loss that has befallen them.

"He told us," they informed the chief, "that he could buy things much cheaper for us if we turned over all our money. We would all go to the coast together."

Those who placed confidence in Ardeser and the sums they bestowed are, R. Tolon, $90; S. Flores, $85; P. Banes, $55; D. Durao, $80; C. Dapusan, $70; A. Ermitaea, $100, and L. Tullara, $80.

STRANGE GIVEN AD CLUB ALOHA AND FOB EMBLEM

be the presentation of the fob, a secret which everybody shared but the recipient himself.

The presentation speech was briefly and appropriately made by Tom Sharp, secretary pro tem. He referred to the esteem in which Mr. Strange is held by his Ad Club brethren and then presented the fob, saying, "We will tag you so that if you get lost in any of the great cities, they can send you back to Hawaii."

Mr. Strange's speech in response was an earnest talk in which he mentioned but briefly his own work and spoke enthusiastically of the work of the Ad Club.

"I am proud to have been working with the Ad Club for Hawaii," he said. "I believe the Ad Club is an asset to the community and that the years to come will tell its effect. The club has created a community spirit and one prompted by the love of unselfish service to Hawaii. My good wishes will be with you wherever I go and whatever may happen to me, and I am going to carry the Ad Club spirit to the trenches."

"I shall always be a strenuous upholder of America and Americans, though at heart I am an Englishman and always shall be. But what success I have attained is due to the fact that I have gained some measure of American methods."

He also urged that the club get behind the Pan-Pacific movement, of which he is one of the directors, and the club responded by authorizing a committee to take the matter up.

Among the newspapermen who spoke in tribute to Strange were R. O. Matheson, editor of the Advertiser, and Riley H. Allen, editor of the Star-Bulletin.

President J. W. Mauck of Hillsdale College, with an impromptu "proxy" from Herbert Houston, president of the Associated Advertising Clubs of America, also spoke in praise of Mr. Strange and the Ad Club.

Another interesting feature of the day was a talk by W. L. Hathaway of San Francisco upon "How the Fals Began."

FADS AND FANCIES.

We know that anything, from a torped to roll of cloth, may serve as raw material to the fashion creator. He is a keen student of passing events and delights in being topical. Already we have had joffre hats, aeroplane trimmings and so on. But sometimes the high priests of fashion take a day off to study animal nature, and recently they must have visited the zoo and seen the abas, for "stripiness" in one form or another is the motive running through a very large number of the new frocks and is even present in the hat and stocking. Clever dressmakers have hailed stripes with delight, for they afford infinite possibilities for the achievement of all sorts of original effects. It is only in the hands of the unskilled that they lead into trouble.
